

Children's Clothing

None of the clothing worn by children should bind any portion of the body so that it will not have perfectly free action.

The fashion of pinning a baby's legs in a bowknot in its "pinning blanket" is the cause of weakness, bow-legged children, and the whipping post would be fair penance for such gross ignorance on the part of parents. The child whose limbs are free to exercise and kick will have a fair chance at growing vigorous, even though handicapped by hereditary defects.

At a minute a baby shows a desire to "kick out of its clothes," as some mothers complain, take off its long, heavy skirts and put it in dresses where its legs will have a chance to assert themselves, but keep your floors warm and clean for the child to tumble about in its own way, and it will get over its crookedness and probably grow up with moderately straight legs.—Exchange.

Circulation of the Blood

In about twenty-two seconds a drop of blood goes the round of the body. In about every two minutes the entire blood in the body makes the round through the right side of the heart, the lungs, to the left side of the heart, through the arteries, the veins, again to the heart.—Health Magazine.

Ten Thousand Niles or Thirty

It matters not which, may subject you to sea sickness on the "briny deep." Whether you are a yachtsman, an ocean traveler, out for a day or two's fishing on the salt water, or even an inland tourist in feeble health, you ought to be provided with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a valuable remedy for nausea, colic, biliousness, acidity of the stomach, malaria, rheumatism, nervousness and sick headache. Lay in an adequate supply.

A grateful mind is both a great and a happy thing.

Mrs. P. C. Adams

Thousands of women, especially in the spring of the year, are nervous, tired, have headache, sick stomach, fainting spells, dizziness, weary or profuse menses, back ache, constipation, their sides, shoulders and limbs ache constantly—in fact, they suffer from general debility of the whole system. The superior tonic qualities of McEwene's Wine of Cardui make it the leading remedy for this class of troubles.

Mrs. P. C. Adams, Chattanooga, Ga., writes: "Two years ago I was taken sick with indigestion, fainting spells, constipation, falling of the womb, and various other symptoms, and kept getting worse and worse. After taking four bottles of McEwene's Wine of Cardui in connection with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I feel like I am able to do any kind of work that a woman can do."

D. L. Coker, Calverton, Fla., says: "McEwene's Wine of Cardui has brought my cheeks back to one of my cheeks after she was given up to die by two of the best physicians."

The Trust After No-To-Bac

Chicago Special.—Reported here to-day that a large sum of money had been offered for the famous tobacco habit called No-To-Bac, by a syndicate who want to take it off the market. Inquiry at the general store revealed the fact that No-To-Bac was put for sale to the trust at any price. No-To-Bac's success is marvelous. Almost every Druggist in America sells No-To-Bac under guarantee to cure tobacco habit or refund money.

And Make Money At It. If you only knew it, the trouble is with your digestion. If that was good you would sleep better, wake better, work better, and make more money at it. MRS. NOBLES TO DIE

SHE AND GUS FAMBLES SENTENCED TO HANG.

Debbly Was Acquitted, While Mary Fambles Gets a Life Sentence.

A surprising mass of humanity overran the little town of Jeffersonville, Ga., at an early hour Wednesday morning to witness the trial of the alleged murderers of old man Nobles. At the courthouse every available place for seeing and hearing was taken advantage of and railings and stairways and tables were crowded; wagons and buggies were pushed up to the high windows of the courtroom and a sea of faces looked in at the proceedings. Indictments having been found, promptly at 8 o'clock proceedings began with Elizabeth Nobles, the wife, Debbly Nobles, the eighteen-year-old daughter of William Nobles, and Gus Fambles, negroes in the prisoners' dock. These five had joined their cases and were to be tried together.

The jury was rather easily obtained. The state objected to two or three only, while the defense rejected most of those placed upon them. About six went off for being opposed to capital punishment and a dozen for not being impartial.

The story as told by the witnesses shows the murder to have been one of the most unprovoked and cruel in the annals of crime. Ashley B. Combs told how he went to see Mrs. Nobles when he learned of the disappearance of her husband, whom he had known so many years. He thought Mrs. Nobles a good woman and expressed his sympathy for her in her trouble. She told him how Mr. Nobles had left to go to Danville or Allentown with some plans and to get a little drink. She expressed herself as being very uneasy and very much troubled at her husband's continued absence.

Suspicion being aroused, Mary Fambles and her husband were arrested. The Fambles woman confessed and implicated the other. Then all of their confessed except Dalton Joyner, who strongly denies any complicity. These confessions, however, were not made until the body had been found. Sheriff S. E. Jones testified that he went to the Nobles place in response to a telegram. It was after dark when he got there. There was much excitement and several times exclamations of "hang them" were made. The hatchet with which the murder was committed was produced in court. Debbly told the sheriff she wanted the old man killed because he was rough on her. In answer to the question as to whether she had given him cause to be rough on her, she answered: "Once." Asked what that was, she answered that she had a baby.

Mary Fambles told Sheriff Jones that Mr. Nobles and Gus had some words in the field. She told Mrs. Nobles about it, and remarked that old man Nobles ought to be killed.

"Then why in the devil don't Gus kill him?" was Mrs. Nobles' comment. Sennette Arnold testified as to finding the body. The grave was only five feet long and twenty inches deep. Nobles was very tall and sparely built. The legs had to be doubled up to get him in the grave. The skull at the back of the head was crushed.

Haywood Wynn told how old Mrs. Nobles had deceived her husband to the place of his death by dropping corn upon the ground as though thieves had dropped it there. She persuaded him not to go to the dwelling house when he came in from work at dusk, but to go immediately and take his stand for the corn thieves. She said she would get his gun for him. She did not carry the gun, but hid it so that the children, not seeing it in its usual place, would suppose she had carried it to their father.

Dr. E. J. Denson testified that there were three wounds and that either of them would have produced death. The position of the wounds showed that the persons who gave them were standing and that Nobles was in a stooping posture. Effie Nobles made a statement saying she knew of the murder, but took no part in it.

Dalton Joyner stated that he went to Gus Fambles' house on the night of the murder after a chicken. He got the chicken and left. He said he was not gone more than fifteen minutes. He denied any complicity in the crime. Mary Fambles simply denied knowing anything about the murder. All things being said, except Dalton, who confessed the crime repeatedly heretofore.

The evidence of other witnesses was about the same as the above. The defense introduced no testimony. Gus Fambles told the witness, Combs, and others, that Mrs. Nobles struck the first blow, which felled the old man to a stooping position. He, Fambles, struck the second, and Dalton Joyner, the third blow. All agree that Mrs. Nobles paid $10 to have him killed, and one witness has testified that she promised him $50 more, and Effie promised $10. This was in Mary Fambles' confession in the courtroom.

Solicitor Eason, in outlining the state's case, created somewhat of a sensation by saying that he did not even give him a Christian burial, but took him off into the bushes and shoved him into a hole as if he were a hog.

Two to hang, one to the penitentiary for life and one acquitted was the verdict of the jury in the Nobles murder trial Thursday.

The prisoners were promptly on hand at 7 o'clock, the hour court opened. No one manifested any weakness except Gus Fambles. He was evidently almost in a state of collapse during the entire proceedings. The old Nobles woman was as cool as a block of ice, and Debbly was almost defiant in her brazen effrontery.

The speeches were able. Solicitor Tom Eason, Colonel L. D. Shannon and John M. Stables made masterly arguments for the state. All of these acquitted Dalton Joyner because they had failed to find convincing evidence against him. In his charge, Judge Smith directed the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal in Joyner's case. All believe him to be guilty, but as the Scotch verdict read, it was not proven.

FOURTEEN KILLED

IN A RAILROAD SMASH-UP IN CANADA.

One Section of an Excursion Train Crashes Into Another.

A terrible accident occurred at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning at Craig's Road station, on the Grand Trunk railway, about fourteen miles west of Levis, Canada.

The death list is as follows: CHARLES BEDARS, mail clerk. MISS BEDARS, his daughter. HECTOR MCLEOD, engineer. RICHARD PERKINS, fireman. REV. FATHER T. J. MEBER. REV. MR. COGAN, all of Richmond. REV. MR. DIGNAN, of Windsor Mills.

MISS VALIN, and her aunt, name unknown, of St. Joseph de Levis. MISS THAUFT, St. Joseph de Levis. MRS. CAYES, of Danville. Two MISSER DELYCOURT, of Sheffield.

JOHN O'FERRALL, of Richmond. The wounded were taken to Quebec for treatment and are as follows: John Cadules, J. P. Cayer, Seraphim Cayer, Joseph Cayer, Louise Cayer, all of Danville; Virginia Sylvester, Mrs. Francis Tontine, Broughton; Louise Godette, Arthabaskaville; Patrick McHugh, Cohinton; Rev. Father T. de Rosiercur, of Broughton; Vierra Allard, Richmond; Antonio Baire, Arthabaskaville; M. J. Quinlon, traveling passenger agent, Montreal.

A very large pilgrimage from Sherbrooke, Windsor Mills and Richmond had left the latter town about ten o'clock last evening for the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. There were two sections of the train, one running a few minutes behind the other. The first section was standing at the Craig's Road station, taking water, when the second section, passing the semaphore, dashed into the rear Pullman coach of the first section, smashing it to kindling wood and killing, it is said, everybody in that car except the Pullman conductor who jumped.

Engineer McLeod and Fireman Perkins of the second section were both instantly killed. The Pullman coach was telescoped into the first-class cars of the first section, killing a number of passengers. Three priests are among the killed.

THE CROP REPORT.

More Fruit Than Ever Known.—Cotton Making Good Headway.

According to the weekly crop report it begins to look as if the peach crop this year will be the largest ever gathered. The trees are fairly drooping under the weight of their luscious burden and every orchard in the state will yield an abundant crop. This is good news. The same conditions that produce a heavy fruit crop produce good health. The two go hand in hand.

Melons are rolling into market every day and the crop is a very fine one. Cotton is doing well and the indications are that the farmers of Georgia will have a prosperous year.

"The week just ended," says the report, "was the wettest since the beginning of the season, the rainfall being in the shape of showers attended with warm sunshine. The temperature conditions were about normal, though in a few localities the nights were cooler than was good for cotton. All crops are growing very rapidly, cotton especially. The corn crop continues very promising, a good harvest being already assured in some of the southern counties. Peaches and melons are abundant, the first named crop bidding fair to turn out the heaviest ever known in the state. Wet weather has delayed the 'laying by' of crops in the northern districts, where some injury is also reported to grain in the field and shock. Several severe local storms occurred during the week, causing much damage by breaking down fruit trees, prostrating corn and oats where not harvested."

SAN SMALL ON THE STAND.

He Tells About the Publication of the Alleged Libel.

A large crowd was in attendance when court opened at Norfolk, Va., Tuesday morning in the Massey-Pilot case. The defense called to the stand, Mr. Sam W. Small, one of the defendants in the case. He was examined by Mr. Heath, narrating his newspaper experience, and saying that at the time of the publication of the Massey Book Company article, he believed the statements to be true, and believed that there was evidence that would establish the truth of the statements in said article. In the course of his connection with the Pilot he received letters calling his attention to school matters, and, having knowledge of the transaction of the American Book Company, he was led to believe that the school book matter was worth looking into. Mr. Byrd prepared an article and sent it to the witness. When it reached the Pilot office, he (Small) pruned it till he thought it would pass muster and then he published it.

Questioned by Mr. Neely, of counsel for plaintiff, Mr. Small admitted that he had not retracted in his newspaper the things he had published, and which he had afterwards learned were not true.

Deposits Sufficiently Large.

A New York special says: Deposits of Georgia Central railroad stock and certificates of indebtedness with the Mercantile Trust Co. company in Savannah have been sufficiently large to give the committee a large majority both of debentures and minority stock. Under these circumstances the plan, by its terms, has become fully operative, and it will doubtless be formally declared so within a short time.

What's Government Costs

In 1870 the total ordinary expenditures of the United States government amounted to $309,653,551. Of this $28,340,202 was paid out for pensions, and $129,235,498 on interest on the public debt. Combined, these two items of expense amounted to $157,575,700, leaving for all other expenses $152,077,851, or about $5.85 per capita.

In 1880 the total was $267,042,958, the amount paid for pensions having increased to $56,777,174, and the amount paid in interest on the public debt having decreased to $95,757,575, leaving $115,508,209, or only $2.15 per capita.

In 1890, out of a total of $318,040,711, the sum of $106,936,855 was paid for pensions, and $36,092,284 for interest, leaving $175,004,572, or $2.80 for other expenses. This was one of the years of the billion dollar congress, and this fact accounts for the increased expenditures per capita over 1880.

In 1893 the pension expenses were heaviest, amounting to $159,357,558. In interest the amount of $27,264,392 was paid, making for the two a total of $186,621,950, out of a total of $389,477,950. Thus we see that for years the two items of expense caused by the war have made about half of the total expenditures of the government.

Both of these items of expense will probably steadily decrease hereafter, probably declining as much as ten per cent each year. The appropriation for pensions was more than $15,000,000 less in 1894 than in 1893, and while the interest was about a half million more, this was exceptional. The debt is gradually being decreased, and when bonds retired are replaced by others, it is at a lower rate of interest.

Thus, with increasing population and decreasing expenditures, it is easy to see that our government ought to be administered at a smaller cost per capita every year, and will be unless congress squanders in other lines the money that will be saved by the natural decrease of pension and interest payments.

Kissing Mother.

A father talking to his careless daughter said: "I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you noticed a care-worn look upon her face. Of course it has not been brought there by any act of yours, still it is your duty to chase it away. I want you to get up tomorrow morning and get breakfast. When your mother comes and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her on the mouth. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face."

"Besides, you owe her a kiss or two. A way back, when you were a little girl, she kissed you when no one else was tempted by your fever tainted breath and swollen face. You were not as attractive then as you are now. Through years of childish sunshine and shadows she was always ready to cure, by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little, dirty, chubby kiddie whenever they were injured in those first skirmishes with the rough old world."

Intoxication From Tea

Although Cowper speaks of "the cups that cheer, but not inebriate," there is evidence of the intoxicating power of tea. In China tea is rarely used till it is a year old because of the peculiar intoxicating property which new tea possesses. Three or four grains of theine are contained in less than half an ounce of good tea and may be taken in a day by most full grown persons without unpleasant effects, but if twice this quantity, or eight grains, a day be taken the pulse becomes more frequent, the heart beats more strongly and trembling comes on. At the same time the agitation is excited, and after while the thoughts wander, visions begin to be seen, and a peculiar state of intoxication comes on. All these symptoms are followed by and pass off in a deep sleep.

Whether the tannin in tea contributes in any degree to its exhilarating or narcotic action is not known. That it does aid in the exhilarating effect which tea produces is rendered very probable by the fact that a species of tannin is the principle ingredient in the Indian betel nut, which is so much prized in the east and which is said to produce a mild and agreeable intoxication. Mate or Paraguay tea, prepared from the leaves of the Brazilian holly in the state in which it is commonly used for a stimulating beverage, also intoxicates.—Baltimore American.

A Revised Version.

Doctor—I would advise you, dear madam, to take frequent baths, plenty of fresh air and dress in cool gowns.

Husband (an hour later)—What did the doctor say?

Wife—He said I ought to go to a watering place, and afterwards to the mountains, and to get some new light gowns at once.—Fliegende Blätter.

He Was Courteous.

"Yes," remarked the young man as he pulled himself together after his hasty exit, "I must say that old Orispin has a rather disagreeable temper, but he's a real gentleman for all that. Few men would be so thoughtful and so courteous as to wipe the mud off their boots before kicking a fellow out of the house!"—Boston Transcript.

You can carry the little vial of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets in the vest-pocket of your dress suit, and it will make every little lump. The "Pellets" are so small that 42 to 44 of them go in a vial scarcely more than an inch long, and as big round as a lead pencil. They cure constipation.

One "Pellet" is a laxative; two a mild cathartic. One taken after dinner will stimulate digestive action and palliate the effects of over-eating. They act with gentle efficiency on stomach, liver and bowels. They don't do the work themselves. They simply stimulate the natural action of the organs themselves.
